HITZ-PRENTISS CASES.

The Prosecution Rapidly Dwindling Down to Nothing. The criminal prosecutions that were begun under the administration of ex-Gov. H. H. Wells, as district attorney, carried through Col. Corkhill's administration of the office, and merged into that of District Attorney Worthington, and known as the German-American National Bank cases, have about reached their end. From the inception to the maturity of the prosecution there were about seventy indictments found. At first several of the directors of the bank wereincluded with the president and cashier, but for some cause trial was never had on these indictments. A new batch was found, in which the directors were dropped out and President John Hitz and Cashier Dr. Charles E. Prentiss were called upon to face the music; meet the charge and trial. The case selected, and upon which some five indictments were consolidated, grew out of a transaction with the Importers' and Traders' National Bank of New York. When this trial came on the government, by direction of the court, furnished to the defendants a list of those indictments which they would be called upon to meet and answer. The trial for making false entries in the books of the bank was had before Justice MacArthur, and the accused were convicted. Upon taking the case to the general term the judgment was sat aside, and the decision of the court demonstrated that the indictments could not stand in any of the false entry cases, which virtually disposed of that series. Since then no action has been taken in the matter until yesterday.

Judge Jere Wisson, in the criminal court, Attorney Worthington, and known as the no action has been taken in the matter until yesterday.

Judge Jere Wilson, in the criminal court, brought to the attention of the court the remaining indictments standing against John Hitzand Dr. Charles E. Prentiss in relation to their acts while officers of the German-American National Bank. He stated that those creaman american is tierman American National Bank. He stated that those cases not enumerated in a list furnished counsel, it was understood, were not to be presented.

District Attorney Worthington indersed the statement, and the court directed a dismissal of these cases. The remaining cases on the list were then considered, and all but two coming under the decision of the general term, those so affected were dismissed. This leaves two indictments for perjury standing, and in these demarrers have been filed.

"I will have to turn these over," said "I will have to turn these over." said

"I will have to turn these over," said Justice MacArthur, "to the tender mercies and better judgment of my successor, as they will outlive my official life."

"Their judgment, your honor," said Mr. Perry, "but not better judgment."

Of the numerous indictments found only two remains, and it is doubtful if they are ever set for trial.

It is the oriulon of many citizens that peither Mr. Hitz nor Dr. Prentiss should ever have been proceeded syainsterlminally. If there were any misdoings in the board the entire directory should have been held accountable for it, instead of settling up-

The Siego of Paris. The usual Monday evening inclemency of the weather did not prevent the Travel Club from making the weekly excursion. The parlors of Strathmore Arms were well filled to bear a paper by Mr Henry P Holden entitled. "Reminiscences of the slege of Paris." The paper was unique, being the supposed observations and comments of a cal during the memorable slege of the French capital in the Franco German war. The cat seems to have had exceptional opportunities for a cat to study the progress of events, overhear the criticisms and odd stories of the time, and to get into historical marrative many of the tragic series and occurrences of the city's seven months slege. Miss Wickware presided at the plano, playing the "The Brook" and variations as an opening solo. The Misses Harvey sang a duet frem "Norma," which was followed by "Silken Bands." paper on "The French Siege and its Actors." Gen. Sheridan on Modern Paganism. Gen. George A. Sheridan, the orator, who speaks to-night at the Congregational Church, is a man nearly 48 years of age. He stands about five feet six inches in He stands about five feet six inches in height, his chest is full and deep, shoulders bread, head massive, and features very strougly marked. His hair is worn long and is slightly gray. As he stands upon the platform he strongly resembles Henry Ward Beecher as he appeared twenty years ago. His style of oratory is impassioned and impressive. His speeches and lectures are full of vivid and ofttimes startling word pictures. He has a magnificent voice and thoroughly understands its use. His gestleulation is graceful, at times striking, always appropriate. Altogetier he is one of the most pleasing, gifted, and powerful of American orators, and certain to win a national reputation if he continues upon the platform.

Not An Attempt at Suicide. Mr. John Harrison stated to a reporter of the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN last evening that the publication in an afternoon paper in regard to his wife, Mrs. Dora Harrison, attempting to commit suicide by taking horse liniment was false in every partidular. There was no reason for the circulation of such a report, and he was mable to understand why such a false statement had been made.
